An attorney and a realtor will face each other in the Nov. 20 runoff for the Justice Court East position, and two candidates with extensive law enforcement experience will vie-for the Constable East position. Nine other hopefuls for the judgeship vacancy and six running for Constable fell by the wayside in Tuesday's primary, which also saw the defeat of building codes proposed for the unincorporated areas of Hancock County. (See additional story),

Candidates and supporters began arriving at the historic downtown Courthouse Tuesday before voting precincts closed at 7 p.m. Some sat on benches or the inside stairways as Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler began announcing the results over a microphone system from the counting area set up in the courthouse lobby. Others stood in huddles outside listening to the results.

When the dust had settled, only two votes separated attorney Harry Ward of Bay St. Louis from Diamondhead realtor, Ricky Adam, who lives in the Kiln.

The unofficial tally was 1,004 for Ward and 1,002 for

In the Constable East race, Phillip Pavolini held a lead of 1,023 over Don Watson, who garnered 779 votes.

Gulf Coast Search and Rescue training

BY JUDY MANG

Gulf. Coast Search and Rescue Coordinator Carlos Redmon and Louisiana Search and Rescue Director of Training Dee Wild joined resources to train with the South East Louisiana Boy Scouts of America at Camp Vee-Barr Salmen Scout Reservation, Kiln.

Luck was with the two groups as the weather of Oct. 20 proved to be a perfect fall day. Temperature in the low 80. Clear and slight breeze. A welcome change from most realtime rescues that can often take place in adverse weather conditions. Pouring, rain dark of night, cold etc.

As the events of Sept. 11 brought so clearly to focus, search and rescue preparation for disaster is imperative. Training is serious.

An organized command post, along with a clearly defined search area, highly trained dogs and personnel can mean life or death for the lost and injured

Because Gulf Coast Search and Rescue and Louisiana Search and Rescue are often called upon to work a large search site together, training days like Saturday, Oct. 20 provided an excellent opportunity for the two search and rescue groups to perfect their skills and learn to work as a welltuned watch,

The Boy Scouts provided the mock victims, excellent training subjects for dogs, handlers and back-up personnel equipped, with emergency equipment and radios.

This day of training is one of many, as years of training are required for a team (dog and handler) to become fully funcders how much we taxpayers paid for the white stripes and markings on the new bicycle path/pedestrian walkway along the beach?

To the Editor:

I find the stripes ugly and distracting at night - garish under the street lights. And all most unnecessary.

Let's see. The county is responsible for maintaining the beach. So I guess the sheriff's department will hire another Am I the only one who won- officer or two to enforce proper use of the new amenity. The county can build an addition to the jail to store the items that the bicycle police seize from bikers who ride on the walkway.

What will they do to pedestrians who dare walk on the bicycle path - take away their sneakers?

Traditionally when a white guy, especially a Republican, from Mississippi, with its racially troubled past, shows up before a Senate committee to fill a federal judgeship, he can expect to be pounded with sharply barbed questions, especially from Democrats - maybe even blind-sided by some questions about his civil rights views from the past - but none of that happened to Mills.

He won a unanimous vote in Senate Judiciary Committee, and later, 98 to zip in the full Senate.

thwarted by the "cold 'tater" doctrine when he was a state legislator back in early 1990s, he makes it clear he still appointive judges on both the through by the Agrarian "pro-

Court.

Mills idea is that Mississippi should adopt a system much like what is commonly called the "Missouri Plan." Judges there are initially appointed, but after four to six years must face what is called "retention," a form of confidence/no confidence vote under which the judge is removed or retained.

granted that Mississippi has always had a system of electing judges by popular vote of the people, all the way through the Supreme Court level, that's not

Four times in its history, Although Mills had been including the writing of the state's 1890 Constitution, judges of the supreme court have been made appointive by the governor. It was by amendstrongly favors a form of ment to the constitution pushed gressives" in 1916 that installed the current elective system for the high court.

Four years before that, the "Progressives" had changed the Constitution to make trial judges - Circuit and Chancery Courts - chosen in popular elections.

Mills emphasizes his view is to leave trial judges subject to popular election, but remove Although many take for the two appellate courts out of the political election system, and he has good reasons to back up that opinion.

> Appellate level judges, he insists, must be independent 'to have accountability, not to popular opinion, but accountable to the rule of law." Last year's runaway spending in the election of supreme court judges, he said, served to reconfirm his belief that judges should not be chosen at the bal-

He points out something few have noticed about those high court judges who were elected in campaigns last year that invariably "if your name was first on the ballot you won, no matter how much you spent."

His deep, rich country twang belies how really bright he is. One of his former colleagues on the state Supreme Court, retired Justice Jim Roberts, says that Mills is not only "very intelligent, he is a good writer, which is important on the court.'

Roberts agrees heartily with this reporter – who has known Mills since his days as Moot Court "judge" in the Ole Miss law school - that Mike Mills is one of the best yarn-spinners to come along in Mississippi politics in years.

"But I must remind you," Roberts adds, "he was on a court of yarn-spinners."

Bay Artists Co-op open house set

The Bay Artists Co-op is holding its 7th annual open house and studio sale of fine art and craft Saturday, Nov. 17 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Nov. 18 from 2 to 5 p.m.

The co-op is a loose affiliation of artists sharing studio space in the old pickle factory in Bay St. Louis since 1995.

This year, associate member Mark Buszkiewicz has become a full member. His thrown and manipulated pottery vessels really stretch the imagination. He is represented at Quarter Moon Gallery.

The co-op also welcomes Kathy McKeague. Her handbuilt platters and bowls were seen at the recent "Emerging Artists" show at Quarter Moon Gallery. She will be presenting ongoing demonstrations of hand-building in clay using the slab technique

Regan Carney, one of the founding members, will offer her well-crafted thrown and hand-built functional wares, as well as sculptures.

She has been an artist in clay since the 70's. Her work is also seen in Quarter Moon Gallery.

Christine Johnson will have her clay figurative sculptures and assembled candleholders.

She has her work at Chessy's. A.J. Reed will be giving ongoing stained glass demonstrations. His work hangs in Talavera Imports.

Elliott Black will be giving pottery-making demonstrations.

Bob Thomson, award-winning and internationally collected metal smith, will be presenting wind chimes, mobiles and metal fountains. His work is usually along botanical themes. He will have cookie cutters available that were made by the late Gail Thomson. He will also be giving demonstrations of his metal smithing craft.

Pat Drackett, a state certified landscape designer and associate member, will be presenting some of her utilitarian vessel forms.

On Sunday, there will be performances by the Folkloric Troupe. Shawn Dance Prychitko is the leader of this entertaining and educational group of dancers.

Bay Artist Co-op is located at 415 S. Necaise St., across from the St. Stanislaus football field and directly across the tracks from the train depot.

The open house/studio sale will be Saturday, Nov. 17 from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 18 from 2-5 p.m. The phone number for the co-op is (228) 467-0073.

First Presbyterian original hymns

The choir of First Presbyterian Church of Bay St. Louis will sing an original hymn for the anthem at the 11 a.m. service on Nov. 18.

The hymn was composed by the church music director Bill nation in time of war.

Garber said the $150,000 he from the 911 Commission "would have no adverse impact on the balance maintained by the 911 Commission.

The money generated by the 911 system is in excess of $300,000 per year and is more than adequate for the operating budget," Garber said.

He estimated county residents contribute 65 percent of the funds going to the 911 Commission, but the county has never before asked for a large contribution.

Cuevas later said the sheriff's department currently operates radios on a low-band freaccount had an unencumbered munities have switched over to a high-band frequency. He said the funds would be used to purchase portable radios for each individual officer and construct three or four repeater antennas around the county to ensure there is uninterrupted communications from the sheriff's office to each individual on the road. The sheriff's department now uses a system of mobile radios and cell phones in individual cars for communicating, but blackouts have occurred in areas around Pearlington and in the vast buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center. Garber said, "This upgrade will not only give us

mobile and base communications, but will, for the first time ever, give the individual officer the opportunity to have communications with the office once he leaves his vehicle."

Supervisors passed a resolution supporting the Sheriff's request, and Garber plans to officially request the money when the 911 Commission meets next on Nov. 13.

In an earlier workshop, Cuevas mentioned the sheriff's department's computer system is also in trouble. He said over the years a number of consultants have been used to upgrade software or install new programs, and some of the computer equipment has crashed.

He said the automated "Are You O.K.," program, which the opportunity to improve our

The sheriff's department is also currently unable to make background checks on individuals for other law enforcement agencies seeking information on individuals they have arrested, he said.

Cuevas wanted permission to hire one consultant to get the entire system up and running but again, County Administrator Tim Kellar asked him to hold up.

Kellar said the county was interviewing computer consulting firms and wants to hire someone who can take a look at all the county's computer systems in order to make them automatically dials those compatible with each other.

SPECIAL TO THE ECHO

Ellis Anderson is talking about the unusual stones she's used in the jewelry designs for her upcoming show at Quarter Moon Gallery, opening Nov. 10. Her special love for the fossils is apparent.

"Some people are skeptical," she says, "but the stones are really cut from fossilized bones. Several deposits are found in Utah. They're extraordinary stones, usually a gorgeous rust color with a mysterious, ancient feel to them. They're just some of the exotic stones nizer of The Majesty of Spain: Royal Collections from the Museo del Prado & Patrimonio Exhibition, Nacional announced the selection of 10 Mississippi school teachers who will travel to Spain as part of the commission's education pro-

The trip is funded by a generous grant from the Feild Cooperative Association, which funded the same educational component of the 1998 Versailles Splendors Exhibition.

Two teachers were selected from each of the five Mississippi Congressional Districts to participate in a week-long visit to Madrid, where they will tour the world-renowned Prado, Museum and the royal palaces of Spain, led by Spanish curators and museum officials.

These ten Mississippi teachers were randomly selected from a list of teachers who fulfilled three requirements as set forth by MCICE for eligibility based upon:

1) attendance at a Majesty of Teacher Training Session, 2) utilization of the Majesty of Spain Exhibition Association, attracted more curriculum as part of classroom instruction, and 3) arrangement of a visit to The Majesty of Spain Exhibition by a group of 20 or more students.

The 10 teachers who were to Spain are: Carolyn Carter, Davidson Elementary School, Water Valley; Jean Harden, royal palaces. Mississippi public and private school teachers and students received these educational materials free of charge.

In making the announcement of the 10 teachers who were selected, Jack Kyle, executive director of the MCICE said, "Educational and cultural enrichment for the students and citizens of Mississippi through exhibitions such as The Majesty of Spain is the foremost goal for which our organization was created.

"Ultimately, the influence which these exhibitions have on the lives of the students and citizens of our state will be the greatest legacy of these international exhibition projects.

"This component of our education program reflects to educators and citizens alike the important role that education plays in the goals and objectives of the commission."

The Majesty of Spain Exhibition received the coveted travel industry award as the "2001 Top United States Event" the American by than 300,000 visitors, and earned for Mississippi a visit by Spain's reigning monarchs King Juan Carlos I and Queen Sofia, the first reigning monarchs ever to visit Mississippi. efforts of these artists.

But there is an immediate point to what I am writing beyond talking about our interest in pictures. Stella and I have known a local artist for some time and have liked her work enough to have several of her charcoals and an oil.

Her work is attractive, pleasant to look at and we enjoy the pieces of hers that we have. However, one large painting hanging in Serenity Gallery on Main Street in downtown Bay St. Louis is different from what she has done before. Much, much different.

I happened by Serenity about a week ago and found the painting hanging in the back room usually reserved for shows. I was shocked by the power her new work exuded.

Basically, it is a portrait of a appears to be a Calvary sword in her lap with her hand resting on the hilt. But it is much more than that.

The emotions projected by the picture are tremendous. They are so strong that at first you don't realize the women is really a petite person, not the large person you initially feel she is, the sword gives the scale to her true size. However, the painting belies that, displaying in its intensity the true scale of her persona.

The play of the power projected by the painting is an graphic lesson on how paintings can evoke feelings in people much the same way as stirring words or music.

It would be interesting to hear the variety of feelings generated by different viewers. There's a "Second Saturday" this weekend. Drop into Serenity and take a look. Go by woman seated with what and see and ask them to show you the large Rigney painting of a woman and see if it impresses you like it has me.

ardent fans. For Christmas last year Moseley's son Tim gave beloved dog Herman. At the age of 91 last year, Moseley says, "It is the best Christmas present I have ever received."

Originally from London, Lynch has painted thousands of animals and has gained many world-wide fans in the merger of pet and rock.

Her cat rocks have been the subject of several television programs and numerous magazine and newspaper articles, Using acrylic paints and a talent honed at the Royal School of Art in London, she also turns rocks of all sizes into lifelike mice, rabbits, snakes, pandas, seals, chimps, elephants and just about any other creature she is asked to paint.

"There's hardly an animal I haven't done, but people have always known me for my cats," says their creator.

Some collectors commission her to do a different animal for every Christmas. Although she does many different kinds of art, she still enjoys the delighther a river rock portrait of her ful animal rocks she creates for others. The artist will be from 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10 at Serenity.

Anderson -- dinosaur bones

I'm using in this new collection of jewelry.

The show is entitled "Short Stories: The Secret Language of Jewelry." All of the works have a common thread – Anderson is using symbols from different cultures around the world to create jewelry that has meaning. The body of work includes cuff-links, rings, amulets, bracelets and earrings.

"In one pair of earrings," she explains, "I used a shield design from a very old petroglyph in Arizona. I paired the silver "shields" with carnelian, a deep red stone that's been used since ancient times in Europe to ward off bad luck. The final earring is an interesting abstraction in a shape that flatters most faces. Only the woman who wears it will know it has a protective meaning."

"Not that I'm superstitious," she says, "but it's fun to wear something that boosts your spirits. I recently wore a pair of the shield earrings to an important business meeting. It was my little secret, and a potent reminder that I should stay focused and keep a good attitude. A talisman's magic is that it helps you remember to think positively."

The pieces for the show are created from sterling silver and 18k gold. Anderson uses a variety of natural gemstones, many cut by master stonecutter Greg King in New Mexico.

"Besides the dinosaur bone," she continues, "I chose unusual agates and jaspers from around the world. I even got a piece of fossilized palm wood, the only natural stone found in Louisiana. To me, the fossilized pieces represent something that passed from this world long ago, but the beauty they possessed still endures. That's a quiet lesson for all of us."

Ellis Anderson began making jewelry 16 years ago. She opened her French Quarter gallery in 1987, both living and working in the lively neighborhood. Eventually she began to explore the region for a second location and chose a historic building in Bay St. Louis. After extensive renovations, in 1996 she opened Quarter Moon Gallery on Main Street.

As well as Anderson's own jewelry creations, she represents 26 other regional artists. The gallery features pottery, hand-painted silks, photography, etchings and a variety of other fine crafts.

After a year in the Bay, Anderson sold her Royal Street location and moved full-time to the Coast. It was a decision she's never regretted.

"People think I'm crazy when I say that the Bay is like the French Quarter with a beach, but it's true. Both places have a real sense of community where neighbors know and support each other. But in the Bay there's an incredible natural beauty that just feeds creativi-

Although she also sells her work though galleries in New Orleans, she enjoys the direct contact with her clientele.

Anderson explains that she's quite willing to deviate from a design to suit a particular customer's desires.

"Often, people want to choose their own stones, or have a symbol that has personal significance incorporated into the piece. Last year, I made identical rings for six sisters who are very close. They sent me a photo of all of them wearing the rings."

The artist has garnered many awards for her work through the years. One of her collections was chosen to receive an Alpha Award, a Southeastern fashion design competition.

The French Quarter Festival commissioned her to design their 15th anniversary piece, and she often creates special works for various corporations.

Several celebrities have purchased her work, including Billy Crystal, who bought two of her bracelets for his daughters. President Clinton was also the recipient of one of her pins.

Anderson explains. "The city of New Orleans asked me to create sterling riverboat pins as gifts for all of the members of the president's "River Cities" commission. They also asked me to make one in gold for the President. It was quite a thrill." Since moving to the Bay, Anderson has established a solid reputation on the Coast, as well as maintaining her creative presence in New Orleans.

She designed the patron's pin for Toast to the Coast (in 1998 and 2001), a piece for the Pass Christian Tercentennial Committee, and one for the new Maritime Museum in Gulfport. This fall, she is introducing new works based on the Bay St. Louis Depot.

Anderson's show will open Nov. 10, during the 2nd Saturday Artwalk and will be on display through Dec. 7. The opening reception is from 5-8 p.m., with live music and refreshments.

The artist will be available to discuss her work and techniques and to consult for special holiday commissions. Quarter Moon Gallery is located in Old Town at 146 Main Street, next to the courthouse.

Vecan Help You Avoid a Stroke In Just 10 Minutes

Stroke is America's third leading killer. It is also the #1 cause for nursing home admissions. Unfortunately, studies show approximately half of all stroke victims have no warning signs before a stroke occurs. Appropriate modification of stroke risk factors is also necessary for stroke prevention. Our screenings cannot detect all forms of stroke and do not replace regular contact and follow-up with your physician.

We'll be in Your Neighborhood!

Pre-registration is a must, Please Call: 1-800-407-4557 Please Reference Priority Code 001

Three Ways We Can Help

We provide non-invasive, completely painless screenings for vascular disease using the most advanced Doppler ultrasound technology. The screenings will quickly detect arterial abnormalities which can cause irregular blood flow.

We offer three separate tests.

Carotid Vascular Test

This test scans the caroticl arteries in the neck for plaque buildup. Up to 75% of all strokes are linked to caroticl artery blockage.³

This tests for the existence of an aneurysm in the abdominal aorta. The vast majority of people who have an aneurysm have no symptoms.

See back for complete details on tests.

Ankle Brachial Index Test

This test screens for peripheral arterial disease (plaque buildup) in the lower extremities which is linked to coronary artery disease.

The nation's largest mobile vascular screening service

Saving lives through preventive screening since 1993.

A physician typically cannot order an ultrasound evaluation for someone who has no symptoms of vascular disease or osteoporosis. Life Line Screening enables you to have yourself checked for indications of vascular disease or osteoporosis as part of your own personal prevention plan. If a significant finding is noted through the screening process, you will take the report to your physician who can then order further testing and give consideration for treatment. Life Line Screening does not want to replace your doctor or hospital in any way. We would simply like to provide them with more information that can help you avoid a stroke or other vascular disease.

- State-of-the-art equipment is used with sophisticated colorflow ultrasound
- A board certified physician who is fully insured and licensed to practice in your state reviews and confirms all screening results.
- Sonographers are R.D.M.S./R.V.T. registered or registry eligible.

"Vascular screening programs for cerebrovascular disease, aortic aneurysms, and peripheral vascular disease have proven their value in detecting previously unrecognized problems in many individual patients that could have resulted in significant illness or even death. Robert J. Steele, M.D.

St. Vincent Charity Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio

"I participated in all three screenings and felt the staff was very professional, efficient, and gracious. This certainly is a valuable service which I shall continue to provide to Laurel Lake residents and to the community for as long as possible." Kathy Burmeister, R.N.

Director of Clinic Services, Hudson, Ohio

Carotid Vascular Test $40

Preparation: No turtlenecks. Test Time: 10 minutes

Purpose: Visualizes the buildup of fatty plaque in the carotid arteries which leads to stroke.

Procedure: The technologist applies an acoustic gel on your neck over your carotid arteries. A painless instrument, called a transducer, will be moved around your neck to visualize the inside of the carotid artery.

Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm (AAA) Test $40

Preparation: Fasting for six hours prior to test. Test Time: 10 minutes

Purpose: Visualizes the existence of an aneurysm (enlargement) in the abdominal aorta that could lead to a ruptured aortic artery. Procedure: The technologist applies an acoustic gel on your abdomen and uses a painless instrument called a transducer to visualize the aorta.

Ankle Brachia Index (ABI) Ankle Brachial Test $40

Preparation: The removal of your socks and shoes. No pantyhose. Short sleeves. Test Time: 10 minutes

Purpose: Screens for peripheral arterial disease in the lower extremities. Studies suggest an abnormal ABI may indicate peripheral arterial disease as well as a high risk of coronary artery disease. Procedure: Blood pressure cuffs and a Doppler ultrasound probe are placed on your arms

Preparation: The removal of one sock and shoe. No pantyhose. Test Time: 5 minutes Purpose: Screens for abnormal bone mass density in women over the age of 45. Fifty percent of those over age 55 who fracture a hip are unable to walk again without assistance. Osteoporosis is painless and silent in its early stages. Procedure: By placing your foot in an ultrasound unit, the bone density of the heel is measured with ultrasound. Save $30 Women who sign up for all four screenings pay only $125!

A board certified physician, who is fully insured and licensed in your state, reviews and confirms all screening results before we mail them to you in 12 to 15 business days. A diagnostic test using similar equipment may range in cost from $300 to $700 when used in a hospital setting. Our goal is to use this same technology to provide you with screening evaluations which will identify potential problems that put you at risk. Life Line Screening is dedicated to providing the highest quality imaging technology at a rate affordable
